The sawing of the first stick of timber at the Hume mill marks the opening of a new epoch in Astoria. It is the first step in extensive development of our vast lumbering industry-an industry that surpasses all others in voluine. The Hume mill will bring other mills to Astoria, and soon this city will be a lumber manufacturing point of importance. The late A. J. Johnson, government forestry expert, estimated that the timber standing in the forests tributary to Astoria was sufficient to keep 100 large mills in steady operation for a period of 50 years-the basis of the business of several billions of dollars. We are just lage of Tumut has been raised to fame now starting upon the development of by having greatness thrust upon it. that immense business. The passing of D. K. Warren deprives Astoria of one of her foremost citizens, whose place it will be difficult to fill. Men of Mr. Warren's kind are community builders, and their number is limited. In trying times, when vital interests are at stake, such men as he are looked to for advice, and their judgment is never-failing. Starting at the very bottom of the ladder of life, he climed upward to the highest round. assisting in the city's advancement as he progressed. In his 68th year, when most men have done with the cares of life, he was promoting a great enterprise, the work of arranging for which name of a great capital. It would nevbrought on the attack that laid him er do, for example, to have the capital Pacific lumbermen have been rapidly low. He died in the harness, as all of the United States located in a place enlarging their area and vo workers die, striving to better the com munity of his adoption. Mr. Warren's life was an exemplary one, and his death is genuinely mourned.

The Multnomah Athletic club has inadvertently, in doubt, set the date for Its fall carnival to conflict with the state fair. The club has arrangements under way for good sports and they should be given either before or after the state fair. The latter institution has been set on its feet in recent years and is maintained at state expense. Since there are 365 days in the year there is no use having a counter attraction in Portland at the same time.

THE CITY OF TUMULT

Out of Australian obscurity the vilsite for the capital of the commonwealth completed its labors some time in the place. It is said to have had of lumber in the Chinese market by a be practically half way between the two rival cities of the commonwealth, Melbourne and Sidney, and to be pleasantly located near the center of a highly cultivated plain, abundantly watered and blessed with a good climate.

If the Australians are satisfied no one else has a right to complain, but advantage of organization on a large if it is to be the capital of the great new commonwealth, whose future is bound to be glorious, it is to be hoped rate of annual production. Unofficial the name will be summarlly changed, estimates put the annual cut of lumber suggests the Call. Chronic Sores

Nothing is a source of so much trouble as an old sore or ulcer, particularly when located upon the lower extremities where the circulation is weak and sluggish. A gangrenous eating ulcer upon the leg is a frightful sight, and as the poison burrows deeper and deeper into the tissue beneath and the sore continues to spread, one can almost see the flesh melting away and feel the strength going out with the sickening discharges. Great running sore and deep offensive ulcers often develop from a simple boil, swollen g'and bruise or pimple, and are a threatening danger always, because, while a such sores are not cancerous, a great many are, and this should make yo suspicious of all chronic, slow-healing ulcers and sores, particularly if car

S. S. S. reaches these old chronic sores through the blood. It goes

ipon a time there was a considerable old industry in the neighborhood, but he paying deposits have been exhaustd and the dwellers in the plain now folow the much more profitable industry of fruit growing. Standard in describing the village says: 'It lies spread over a hillside, its long main street falling along the slope from the 'bush' covered hilltop to the winding river below. The majority of the iouses are one-storied weather-boardcottages, with narrow verandas along their street frontage. The better class buildings are of brick of the ordinary bungalow type, with deep verandas on every side. Only in the central part of the town do we find two-storied houses. The banks, four in number; the hotels, ten in all, and the stores are the only buildings that soar higher than the ordinary single-story level."

Such is Turnut, the proposed capital of the youngest of commonwealths, but one that has possibilites of growth equal to those of the greatest of exicting nations. The town saw stormy times in the old days of the gold excitement, but of late it has had a quiet and sleepy existence. Now it is to become again the center of storms. The politicians of the commonwealth will doubtless make the town ring louder than the miners did. Meantime the first work in establishing a capital there will be that of building a railroad to the place, for as yet it is in a wilderness and one has to make a journey of twenty miles from the nearest railroad station to reach it.

The lumber markets of the Orient and the share which the United States s likely to have in supplying them is the subject just now of some attention by the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, says a Washington dispatch. The bureau recently received and published reports of American consuls, which anounced the arrrival of the first cargo Russian vessel from Vladivostock. This fact opens the question of future competition for the Oriental market be tween the American lumber interests on the Pacific coast, on the one hand, and that of the Russians in Siberia and on the Yula river, on the other,

In both cases enormous resources are awaiting development. The American industry of the Pacific coast has the scale and of mechanical equipment un equaled by that of any other field in the world. This is evidenced by the at 4,600,000,000 feet, of which Californis supplies $60,000,000 feet; Oregon 740.

of statistics, the redwood shipments 1902 amounted to 260,597,605 feet. In adand fir; in 1901, 403,245,540 feet; and in

Further north on the coast the trade in lumber has been expanding with corresponding strides. Shipments by water alone at Seattle were 564,472,801 feet of lumber in 1902, and 506,964,749 feet in 1901. A movement of almost equal proportions is taking place to points in the interior by rail. In 1902 rail shipments to the interior amounted to 562,175,000 feet, and in 1991, to 364,530,000 feet. The number of shingles sent east of the Cascade mountains, extending into the territory east of the Missouri river, and, in many cases, as far as the lakes, 2071 Bond stree. Phone 2074 Red. amounted to 5,080,640,000 in 1902, and to 4,485,600,000 in 1901. The traffic furnished to railroads in 1901 aggregated 52.337 cars of lumber and shingles from Seattle alone, and 69,231 cars in 1902. Rail shipments from Tacoma, including both lumber and shingles, were 3,- 141 cars in 1900, 4,520 cars in 1901 and 6,026 cars in 1902. Pertland, Ore., shows a traffic toward the interior by rail ranking next to Seattle in importance. In the calendar year 1900, 11,986 cars of lumber were shipped from this port, 13,517 in 1901 and 15,876 cars in 1902. As the above figures indicate, one of the most noteworthy facts in connection with the development of the Pacific coast lumber trade is its increasing contribution to the transcontinental tonnage for railroads on the way back from the Pacific coast eastward. The opening of the Mississippi valley to the Pacific coast lumbermen likewise brings the export trade from the coast in closer relations with the demands of the domestic consumer. The consumer in the Mississippi valley is directly interested in the progress of lumbering, both in the northwestern states and in the southern states, as main sources of supply. The entire east is chiefly dependent on both of these sources. Consequently, all domestic industries and interests, relying on the lumber supply of the future, are concerned with the prospective ability of any foreign competitor to share the foreign market, and thus to affect the rate of domestic output and its ratio to domestic demand.

The relative importance of foreign to domestic demands, so far as the Pacific coast is concerned, is not easily ascertained. There are, however, a few figures bearing on the subject. The principal mills of the state of Washington for 1892 reported that 286,172,388 and all the latest planoforte music can feet were sent to coastwise destinations and 153,115,654 feet to foreign destinations. If this ratio holds good for the Dr. T. L. Ball coast as a whole, it would appear that nearly 30 per cent of the output goes to foreign and 70 per cent to domesti
